Student Body President Norm Litzner faces impeachment at Tuesday's Student Body meeting.

Preliminary action was taken by the student senate at its meeting Monday night. Formal charges were laid against Litzner, and the senate voted to go ahead with impeachment proceedings.

Although procedure is uncertain in an impeachment case, it was decided that the 12 Wartburgers who attend Student Body meetings should serve as a jury during the trial. Vote will be taken Tuesday. If more than 12 show up, their votes will be counted, too.

CHARGES AGAINST Litzner include: Railroading motions through senate in order to have shorter meetings, bribery in official matters and general disorganization of the senate office.

Litzner

Minor charges, of which there were many, were cheating on the sizes of nickel ice cream cones while employed in the Den, trying to out-whistle Ray Norheim, being constantly late for appointments and "several other items too much of a disgrace to repeat," snickered Roger Lageschulte, vice president.

"I still can't get over it! Why, there was never a dull minute with him around," said Student Body Secretary Marilyn Nissen about the impeachment.

JOEL DIEMER, Student Body Treasurer, added, "No comment! I still have to live with him. I will say though, it's a good thing I take care of the money around here."

Bob Albers, chairman of Student Welfare Committee, commented, "With all the things he's done, he had better get some Wartburg insurance quick!"

MARY WILHARM, chairman of a Senate subcommittee, has announced her committee is thoroughly investigating the matter and still discovering new evidence which, according to Miss Wilharm, "will convict him for sure."

On this whole matter Litzner, whose duties are now being assumed by Lageschulte, stated, "I thought the worst thing I did as Student Body president was being on the convo committee."

Collapse Of Roof Sets Chapel Back

An entire section of the roof of the new chapel-auditorium now under construction gave way and collapsed into the interior early this morning, slowing the rapid progress of the building.

Drape Construction Company foreman, Don Schoof, could give no reason for the mysterious fall-in, but said that he was presently investigating.

Schoof said, however, that he did expect the structure to be completed by 1963.

NOLAN CRAMER was found slumped dead in his apartment last night. Authorities are investigating the slaying, which seemed to be done with a sword-like instrument.

Nolan Cramer Found Dead In Alpha Apt. Last Night

Nolan Cramer, long time playboy, impersonator and slander specialist, was found dead in his Alpha House apartment last night.

Death was apparently caused by a severe blow on the head with a sharp object, according to campus sheriff, Ron Shinn. A relic Roman sword, complete with bloodstains, was found near the scene of the crime. Shinn calculated that Cramer's assailants must have used it to slay him.

FOUR CENTENNIAL Hall girls are being held without bond, according to Shinn. Each confessed under oath that Cramer had been four-timing them. They said they got together and decided to kill him after he had compared their presence to cafeteria food.

The names of the four girls are being withheld, because it is believed that more will come forward and admit to the crime.

THE GIRLS stated that they had contrived their method after attending Cramer's latest movie production, "The Robe."

It was discovered that Cramer left the bulk of his six-dollar estate to his anonymous and faithful pet duck, Clifford. Cramer had always said that with the aid of Clifford's happy quack he was able to withstand even the meanest Schick test.

Also mentioned in Cramer's will was the Alpha dog to which he left an old shoe in hopes that the canine would follow in his footsteps.

AN UNIDENTIFIED hand reaches out to shake hands with the latest addition to the Wartburg faculty. The new comer, Dr. G. Robot, may create a bit of static, but is expected to adhere closely to administratative policy.

Regents' Selection Is C. Pichelmeyer

In a surprise move yesterday, the Wartburg Board of Regents named Charles Pichelmeyer, Waverly, as their new chairman.

The selection followed the resignation earlier this week of Walter Voecks, Waverly, for personal reasons.

A usually reliable source says the resignation resulted from repeated conflict over whether the Board of Regents has the authority to cut down last year's Student Body project.

"Pichelmeyer has been quietly groomed for the board chairmanship a number of years now," explained Wartburg President C. H. Becker. "No doubt he will make some sweeping changes."

DR. BECKER added that Pichelmeyer knew most of the ins and outs, the ups and downs of Wartburg College, particularly in the area of the gymnasium.

Pichelmeyer has been a member of the Wartburg janitorial staff a number of years. Before he was named board chairman, he served as head janitor.

"I hope to continue to serve Wartburg in my new position," said Pichelmeyer. "It will be a new type of work for me, but I felt that I was getting into a rut."

PICHELMEYER'S list of proposed changes include cutting down of the 1959 Student Body project, raising faculty salaries and building an addition on to Fuchs Lounge.

Other leading contender for the Board chairmanship, according to reliable sources, was Walt Raney, Waverly. Although the race was close, Pichelmeyer won by a cigar length.

Pichelmeyer will preside at the first regularly scheduled Board of Regents meeting May 21.

KWAR Joins Ranks, Charged With Payola

Wartburg's radio station KWAR has been charged with payola.

Columbia Broadcasting Company has had officials on campus this week investigating the situation and conducting lie-detector tests on station personnel to locate the culprits.

They have discovered that a number of Wartburg disk jockeys received money for promoting the popularity of several current artists. The continual playing of certain recent records by these artists brought the situation to light.

Dennis Thurow, manager of the station, has stated that the same records had to be played continually because KWAR lacked funds for new discs.

At the present time CBS is sure there are at least two Wartburg disc jockeys involved, but they will not reveal names until they are sure of details.

Faculty Meet Re-set

The weekly faculty gathering slated for Wednesday evening at 6:30 has been assigned a new location due to the overcrowding of Roy's Place.

This week's meeting is to be held across the street at the Town Steak House. A number of important items are on tap, according to Dean J. O. Chellevold.

CLASSY . . NO CLASSES

A pre-Outfly holiday for professors Wednesday, will precede Thursday's Outfly original, according to dean of faculty, J. O. Chellevold.

MAYOR MAKES PASS

Construction Set For Corner Overhead

The Waverly City Council recently approved construction of an overpass at the intersection of Bremer Ave., and Ninth St., NW.

"That corner has long been a problem," said Mayor Fred Gaylor.

The mayor stated that because of a campaign conducted by the Wartburg Trumpet, the city fathers had decided to act on the issue.

"We had to respect the wishes and lives of the more than a thousand people who use that crossing every day," he said.

THE TRUMPET, in its campaign to get a stop and go light placed on the corner, uncovered statistics which aided the Council in its decision.

Statistics showed that the number of cars going by the corner on Bremer was too great to safely allow the crossing of pedestrians or other cars. Yet, the flow of traffic on the highway is such that it cannot be held up.

"The overpass will take care of both problems," said the mayor.

THE OVERPASS, itself, will allow both cars and pedestrians to cross Bremer safely.

Architects Madison and Clark of Des Moines have submitted sketches of the proposed structure to the Council. These sketches include an enclosed spiral staircase and walk for pedestrians and a three-lane drive for motorists.

According to the mayor, construction will begin sometime this spring.

The Whole Staff Has Gone Mad

Don't believe a word of this issue, dear reader. The entire staff has gone insane. Everything is fictitious except the advertising, and that is only because the ad manager managed to get out of town before the epidemic set in.

Several members of the editorial staff including the managing editor are in hiding at the moment. The editor himself was last seen leaving town on a floating ice cake in the Cedar River. (He has been packing his bags all week in preparation.)

Mid Knight March

By Bob Solete

My friends, do you remember that old Scythian custom when the head of a house died? How he was dressed in his finest dress, set in his chariot and carried about to his friends' houses? How each of them placed him at his table's head, and all feasted in his presence?

Suppose it were offered to you in plain words (as it is offered to you in dire facts) that you should gain this Scythian honor gradually, while you yet think yourself alive.

Suppose the offer were this: you shall die slowly. Your blood shall daily grow cold, your flesh petrify, your heart beat at last only as a rusted group of iron valves. Your life shall fade from you and sink through the earth into the ice of Caina.

But, day by day, your body shall be dressed more gaily, set in higher chariots and have more orders on its breast, crowns on its head. Men shall bow before it, stare and shout round it, crowd after it up and down the streets, build palaces for it, feast with it at their tables' heads all the night long.

Your soul shall stay enough within it to know what they do, to feel the weight of the golden dress on its shoulders and the furrow of the crown-edge on the skull — no more.

Would you take the offer, verbally made by the death-angel? Would the meanest among us take it, think you?

Yet we grasp at it, every one of us, in a measure; many of us grasp at it in its fullness of horror. Every man accepts it who desires to advance in life without knowing what life is; who means only that he is to get more horses, more footmen, more fortune, more public honor and — not more personal soul. He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace.

Objections Raised To Drowned Body

To the Editor:

Early this week I was awakened out of a sound sleep by my roommate. She had just returned from breakfast and appeared as though she had run all the way back. She was trying to tell me something but was out of breath.

I dozed off again, but when I heard her exclaim "There's a body in front of the Union!", I experienced a sudden start and looked unbelievingly at her. You know how roommates are, rather queer at times, so I dismissed the incident as one of those times and went back to sleep.

SUDDENLY TWO more specimens charged into my room and reiterated the same story that my roommate had just described. Unable to get any sleep, I decided to investigate this wild tale.

I hurried to the scene, and when I saw him my eyes popped open, my mouth dropped and tears began to enter my unbelieving eyes. There, in one of the deeper holes, was a floating body.

I COULDN'T believe it — a drowning on the Wartburg campus? But there he was before my eyes. No one knew who it was, but the orange beanie floating nearby distinguished him as a Clinton Hall Crusader.

Poor guy. He probably didn't see the hole as he groped his way through the precarious fog. Needless to say, he couldn't swim. Accept my sympathies, Clinton Hall.

THIS SITUATION is revolting. Something must be done about this water hazard on campus. One death isn't bad, but who knows how long before someone else falls victim to the treacherous death traps known facetiously as "puddles."

Listen, Wartburg, if this problem isn't solved soon I'm taking my canoe to class. I mean it! Something must be done soon.

Get Rid Of This Rot

It will soon be time for student government elections again.

Office-seekers will present their platforms and their ideas of improvements. It will be the same old rot.

A candidate this year is going to have to come up with something solid to get our vote. A sound platform and a logical one for an asspirant to build on this year would be to do away with all of this academic stress.

It seems that all we get done is studying. It is time to stop and consider this matter. Are we in college to rack our brains all the time?

No, no, a thousand times, no. A long time ago some misguided administrators misplaced the emphasis. An alert candidate should catch this today and start a campaign to straighten out this deplorable situation.

For instance, we could change many things at Wartburg. We could start cutting down on the number of class hours, so that students could get more sleep. No student should have to get out of bed before 10 a.m. Then after 1 p.m., he should have the rest of the afternoon to himself.

Besides that, these class hours should have a reserve clause that leaves an opening for automatic dismissal, in case students want a spontaneous street dance or something similar.

The downstairs of the library could easily be converted into a bowling alley. Rooms in Luther Hall could be turned into private lounges for card games and other entertainment. What few classes that will be necessary to be held can meet in the basement of North Hall.

The college could cut down on faculty salaries and build a larger student union. They could purchase a fleet of new cars that students could use at their discretion.

Complete subduing of faculty and administration would complete such a fine platform.

An up-and-coming candidate will include these things and many more. It is time to correct some of these boners that educators have come up with in the past.

What about the student who got an Oppie card on April First and thought it was a joke?

Nightmare of the week — everything in this issue is true!

Knights Drop Conference, Shove Wis. From Big Ten

Wartburg will withdraw from the Iowa Conference early next week and join the Big Ten, according to Athletic Director Dr. Axel Bundgaard.

Knight athletic teams will fill the slot vacated by Wisconsin in the present conference. Wisconsin reportedly was kicked out of the Big Ten for several reasons.

The Badgers' lop-sided loss in the Rose Bowl earlier this year indicated that university officials were putting too much stress on academic pursuits and not paying enough heed to athletics.

"We simply cannot tolerate this and maintain prestige," Big Ten Commissioner Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, reportedly stated in his Chicago office yesterday.

Wartburg was selected over arch-rival Upper Iowa on the basis of the "free-ride" scholarship program which was adopted by the Board of Regents recently. Upper Iowa ironically had announced that they were eliminating financial assistance, just before the decision was made by Big Ten officials.

The Knights' admission into the conference may reverse the recent vote of the Big Ten not to renew the Rose Bowl pact, since Wartburg's faculty has already gone on record as being in favor of continued participation in post season games.

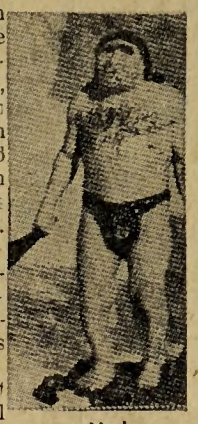
Ned Anderthal Joins Wartburg Cindermen

Great things are expected of the latest addition to the track squad. Ned Anderthal, freshman from Java whose picture appears here, is counted on by Coach Ax Bundgaard to nail down many firsts in the dashes.



Ned

After examination, Bundgaard revealed the secret of his success.

"We just place a girl in a leopard skin at the finish line and hold him back until the starter's gun goes off," said Bundgaard. "The only drawback to the system is the number of the girls he knocks out after the completion of the race."

Anderthal had been counted upon to supply strength in the relays, but it was soon discovered that his baton was too heavy for the other relaymen.

Picking Out Slivers

Wartburg's baseball team will leave for Tampa, Fla., one week from today, April 8, for spring training.

Wartburg is the second school in the history of the Iowa Conference to participate in spring training maneuvers during Easter vacation. Buena Vista has been doing this for many years and it seems to be paying off as they've won the conference championship nine of the last twelve years.

The Knights will participate in a number of exhibition games with the U. of Florida while in Florida. The Oppiemen will also make a stop at Bradenton, Fla., where a number of the boys will participate in the Milwaukee Braves rookie school.

Although the raging Cedar River still possesses ice, Wartburg's water-skiing squad is conducting daily work-outs. The squad is currently using the flooded Dry Run as a workout area.

Dr. Gerhard Ottersberg, a member of the Wartburg winter ski team in his college days, is coaching the sport.

Ottersberg said, "We've got a number of good boys; this could be our year."

Ottersberg then added, "Wartburg's rowing crew, under the direction of Coach Johansen, is our main problem right now. They just take up too much room. The other day as I whipped by in my motor boat during a practice run, I almost capsized trying to avoid the crew squad."

Jo countered by saying, "Crew is an important sport here at Wartburg. If it is to remain, we'll need more training area before we can get out on the river. I suggest another Dry Run."

Dr. Ax Bundgaard, head of the P.E. Department and also head track coach, was smiling from ear to ear today when he received the news that the Board of Regents had approved a new addition to the gym. The reason Bundgaard was so pleased is because the new addition will house an indoor track, expected to be the foremost of its kind in the state.

TEAM THREATENS

Oppermann Regains Eligibility

Wartburg's baseball team, picked for a runner-up spot in the Iowa Conference, received a boost this week that may allow it to go all the way.

Earnest Oppermann, veteran baseball coach and Dean of Students, has recovered a semester of athletic eligibility that was presumed to be lost when he was a student here in the '30's.

"Oppie" made the discovery himself after obtaining his academic record from college registrar, Miss Mattie K. Harms. Miss Harms had been holding tenaciously to Oppermann's transcript for the past several years, claiming that he still owed the college some tuition money.

DEAN OF FACULTY J. O. Chellevold interpreted the problem after investigation of his own. It seems that Oppermann was so far ahead of the rest of his class back in 1938, that he began work on his M.A. before he finished his B.A. It was then discovered that he did not use all of his eligibility.

After scouring the campus to locate him for an interview, we finally found him on the baseball diamond.

Oppie was a stellar backstop for the Knights two and one-half decades ago. We asked him what he thought his chances were for the coming season.

"GOURLEY AND ZEHR are going to have to really put out to see any action this season," grunted Oppermann as he smashed a 400-foot drive well over the dry run.

Stepping out of the batting cage, he took five quick 100-yard sprints and returned to our side.

"'COURSE WE got a big gap to fill at shortstop this year and if no one looks good enough to handle it, I might have to move out there myself," he said.

"Got to work hard to get in top shape, though," he added. "With my eligibility back now, I figure on running some hurdles for Ax on the side."

With that, we left him as he was doing push-ups in preparation for his stint on the mound as a batting practice pitcher.

SCENE FROM the past will become a scene of the present as Oppermann takes over the backstop spot after discovering he has a semester of eligibility left.

Mrs. M. Garland Is W-Club Queen

Mrs. Margaret Garland, English Department, was elected W-Club Spring Sports Queen Tuesday, according to President Chuck Nichol.

"We chose her because she is the peppiest teacher around here," commented Nichol.

She will be crowned at the first water ski meet held on the Cedar River. The tourney is tentatively scheduled April 22.

Not really. 'Cause if Coke had been around in Caesar's day, Caesar would have treated himself to the sparkling good taste, the welcome lift of Coke! Caesar's motto—"I came, I saw, I conquered." Pretty good motto for Coke too—the prime favorite in over 100 countries today!

200 Coeds Attack Clinton Hall

Police Put Down Two-Hour Fracas

Hordes of Wartburg coeds swooped down and surprised defenseless Clinton Hall, men's dormitory, last night in the latest version of college panty raids.

The gals, two hundred strong, suddenly staged an attack on the male residence to loot things of sentimental value. The spree, a two-hour ordeal, was broken up by police and firemen who were finally summoned to the scene to disperse the riotous females.

The Knighties paid little heed to Campus Sheriff, Ron Shinn, first officer on the scene, when he tried to curtail their siege. Boos and hisses greeted his pleas, and be was forced to retreat as the rampaging girls roared forward shouting "Centennial Cometh Calling." (Shinn had just come from investigating a murder in Alpha House.)

Dean of Students E. F. Oppermann, upon arriving at the scene, said, "I have never seen so many hungry looking women in all my days at Wartburg."

OPPERMANN showed signs of being overcome by fatigue at some points in his interview, after having helped battle the girls for more than an hour before authorities were called.

Housemother, Mrs. Augusta Allenstein, said that she heard a thunderous noise before the Wartburgettes entered the dorm. At first she thought it was a joke, but soon she found herself surrounded by Clinton's male population clamoring for shelter. The entire dorm was in a state of bedlam.

POLICE TOOK positions around the disorderly area when they arrived and soon the demonstrators were forced to retreat to the safety of their own dorm. Several were apprehended and held for questioning.

One girl stated that she did not know how the whole thing started.

ANOTHER SAID, "I was returning to the dorm when I saw these girls running toward Clinton, and before I knew it I was in the middle of it all."

Most were in a daze about how the raid really started but it was thought that most of the girls were angry about the scratchy beards that are now being worn around the campus.

The original aim, said some, was to get the razors that were not being used at the moment.

BADLY OUTNUMBERED, a Clinton Hall crusader valiantly tries to protect his drawers. Two hundred coeds from Centennial Hall unaccountably stormed the men's dorm last night.

Wartburg Waiting For Robert E. Lee, As Band Director Vanishes In Chicago

Robert E. Lee, director of the Wartburg College Band, has been reported missing in Chicago, one of the stops on the spring tour.

Being such a little man in such a big city, it is safe to assume that Lee became wedged in the bustle of the evening rush. When he finally emerged from the crowd, he undoubtedly lost his bearings.

Another possibility is that he has been kidnapped and is being held hostage by some ruthless gangsters. Wartburg College is expecting to receive a call any minute regarding a ransom for his life.

Will the college pay the ransom? Is Lee worth thousands of dollars?

Band members immediately formed search parties to hunt for the victim. Fred Stark took a group of his friends to search the night clubs and local pubs. It seems they have been detained in their mission.

When they failed to return, Gail Lovold and some of the girls decided Maxwell Street better be searched. They were unable to locate Mr. Lee, but they did view some honest-to-goodness boods of Chicago — from a distance, of course.

Lee

Lyn Lienhard, Crazyhorse, took a crew and checked the libraries and museums in case Lee had decided to brush up on his knowledge, as most Wartburgers did during their break.

Checking the train, bus and plane stations were Bruce Buslaff and his bearty group. These boys thought that possibly someone might be trying to smuggle Lee out of the city.

A detective agency, Peek and Seek, has been hired to locate the lost director.

Singers' Sickness Snares Publicity

Castle Singers' Midwestern tour is giving Wartburg worldwide recognition.

Fritschel

For some unknown reason, 48 of the 53 singers have laryngitis. It has been up to the five remaining voices to carry on the program.

James Fritschel, director of the group, has joined the few remaining voices to put on the program. He feels that it is of prime importance to carry on the show.

Druggists and doctors all over the Midwest have tried to help the ill-fated group. All kinds of pills, sprays and medicines have been poured into the bodies of the Knights and Knighties.

Trumpet Editor Ed Schick would like to thank the Castle Singers for this opportunity to get Wartburg into the news, since this is the ultimate aim of the college.

Dry Run Claims Sunbathing Trio

While Sioux City waded out from under its floods, Wartburg College sadly retrieved three victims from the rampaging Dry Run.

Three coeds who were doing some early sunbathing in the Dry Run north of the tennis courts were washed away by a flash flood Monday.

Victims of the tragedy were sophomore Jackie Knoble, Minneapolis; freshman Judy Dueshop, Chicago; and freshman Barbara Tabor, Waterloo.

Kool' Klubs

By Niki

Like man, if you are a really hep Beat, dig this! A mass gathering of all beats will be held at this cool campus. The Beatnik Club, headed by cool cat John Anderson, will congregate at the Mad Pad. According to Johnny-O, a night of verse-reading and a review of what a true Beat really is will headline the night's activities.

A petition is also going to be drawn up concerning the outlawing of the Gay Nineties.

Unless you are a square from Squaresville, this will be a meeting you will want to attend.

★ ★ ★ ★

The Fuchs Lounge Lovers Club will be holding their morning, noon and night meetings every day until the end of the semester.

Tryouts and casting will be held at the nightly meetings to select a cast for the play ROMEO AND JULIET.

Also the Loungers are trying to get a new Student Body project started. They want lamps with only 20 watt bulbs that will automatically switch off when a couple enters the lounge.

They also feel mood music should be piped into the lounge. All members are urged to be present and see that the project goes through.

The Sun Bathers Club has plans to ask the administration for money in order to level off the Dry Run.

Three of their most prominent members were washed down the Dry Run while sun bathing during the rainy season this year. They are fearful the same thing may happen again.

The president of the organization stated that if it should prove too expensive, they would be contented with sandbags around the entire area.

Good luck, Sun Bathers!

It seems as if this reporter nearly missed the news concerning the formation of a new club on campus. It is located in Centennial Hall, and it is known as the third Floor Carousers Club. In fact, rumor has it the occupants of third floor did not know it existed.

One girl stated, "Boy, I wish I knew so much fun was going on — I live here and I missed it."

I wonder if this can be a secret society?

Lestrud Searches For 'Lady Chatterley' Lead

Dramatics Director Vernon Lestrud is conducting a worldwide search for an amateur actress to play Lady Chatterley in the Wartburg Players' next production, "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

According to Lestrud, it is important that he find the right girl for the role, since all action is centered on Lady Chatterley.

Lestrud

Lestrud has just completed a search in both Chicago and New York City. He is now on his way to Hollywood and if be doesn't find her there, he will continue his search in Paris, France.

The selection of the other cast members was not much of a problem, and they are all willing to begin rehearsals as soon as Lestrud finds the ultimate.

Also, the staging and costumes will not create much of a problem, since they will need to be very simple to carry out the effect of the play.

Who Me?

F. HOWARD SCHROEDER, president of Chi Rho, campus pre-theological group, holds his hands in the air after being apprehended by Sergeant Stanley Noyce for car theft.

101 Wartburgers Put On Probation

One hundred one Wartburg students were placed on disciplinary probation . Thursday, according to Dean of Students Earnest F. Oppermann.

"The school has, over the years, established many regulations that were felt necessary for the moral edification of our students," said Dean of Women, Mrs. Florence Hertlein, "and until it is established that these rules are no longer of value, they must be enforced."

Both deans felt that possibly such action will soon come about that will allow such activities on our campus, under supervision.

"But until such action is taken by the authorities of the college," pointed out Oppermann, "we will just not allow any campus-cutting on the Wartburg property."
